

FOUR OF FIRE

Four of Fire

The Four of Fire represents taking a commitment to the next level in a relationship, spiritual practice, or artistic endeavor. Your journey has gone from generating a path to finding stability and building upon your strong foundation. You have embarked upon a successful journey with a lot of hard work, so now is the time for a short (creative) celebration.

Look forward to an invite to a wedding, graduation, or special celebration marking progress and achievement of some kind. This could also be a wedding card—more of a bachelor party—very male.

Notes

Fives

Fives represent an external challenge. Their appearance in a reading indicates life is about to get interesting, often in the form of hardship, stress, or conflict from the outside. Do not let this worry you, for this external challenge will bring freedom, variety, adaptability, adventure, and propel personal growth.

The downside of the Five is it can indicate scarcity, confusion, fear, mismanagement of something or someone, and even physical abuse.

Five of Earth

The Five of Earth announces an external challenge. Things have been lost or mismanaged due to carelessness, misinformation, or irresponsibility, and you now feel a lack of security or stability. Scarcity and fear lead to anxiety and worry, so while you are currently going through a challenge, use this message as a springboard toward re-evaluating, learning, and then moving forward, perhaps on a different path or with other resources and people around you. Be aware of physical and financial challenges (bankruptcy) now and monitor your stress levels. Ask for help from people with expertise.

Five of Water

Fives represent an external challenge, and the Five of Water represents the loss of a relationship or connection. You may be on a rollercoaster of emotions, lacking consistency and attachment. This relationship may be salvageable, for there's always hope—there is one cup standing, so there's the possibility of future reconnection. In the meantime, do not focus on loss or betrayal. This can be heartbreaking. Take time to mourn what was and the loss of your dream, then get on with the adventure.

Five of Air

An intensity of mental stress can take many forms. The Five of Air is a warning of deception and betrayal, often of one's true self. This is the energy of "just because you feel paranoid; it doesn't mean they are watching you and judging you." It brings the message to be versatile and adaptable and focus on possibilities and the adventure—not just what's in front of you right now. Learn how to set limits so you can avoid further arguing, strife, and abuse. Meditation is challenging at this time and valuable if you are able.

Five of Fire

The Fire of Fire appears in a reading when you are challenged for your choices. You have reached a place of confrontation of your inner soul standards in your relationship, creations, or spiritual practices. Defending yourself unnecessarily leaves you exhausted and depleted emotionally and spiritually. Remember, you have free will and the freedom to make your choices. Get rest. Set boundaries. Remember also that you are going to be responsible and accountable for your actions. It is time to stop the internal conflict and inconsistency that has led to constant stress and turmoil. Use these challenges to relaunch you on a life path of deep integrity.

Sixes

Six represents healing, harmony, sacredness, regrouping, and momentum building. The six energy covers a variety of emotions and issues, such as love, home, family, and personal responsibility in matters of the heart, stability, and balance. Six cards remind us to be tender-hearted, understanding, and look at life with a balance of sweetness and justice, and to adjust our lens accordingly.

The Six's downside represents holding on, anxiety, worry, egotism, cynicism, unbending, having too much pride, or being incomplete.

Six of Earth

Six of Earth represents the energy of generosity, karmic balancing, and healing. This is a card of “give and take.” What you put out comes back to you. There is a balance in life, and when we are balanced with our commitments and delivery, there is enough for everyone. Perhaps someone owes you money or a promised outcome, or you are indebted to them. Either way, the time is now to “settle up.” Expect blessings; give blessings. Find your balance and place in this cycle. This will lead to greater prosperity, stability, and keeping the karmic balance even and peaceful.

Six of Water

Recovery and emotional healing are being offered, so be open to it. Be gentle with yourself now and take time to rejuvenate—purge the old. Surround yourself with beloved things—cultivate feelings of peace from within. An old friend is coming to visit you to support and comfort you at this time. Be childlike in your receptiveness, especially if it is someone new, as they will be very right for you at this time.

Six of Air

The Six of Air brings the much-needed message of healing, regrouping, and karmic balancing. It is time to come to terms with certain duties and obligations and accept the outcome. Feel the promise of harmony, re-evaluate, resolve, and move on. It can also be a physical move. The insight will smooth the way toward regaining one's dignity. Allow your true spirit to rise.

Six of Fire

The Six of Fire represents a time in your life when things have evened out. You may be experiencing a taste of success and yet are not quite sure if it's brought you joy. Perhaps too much sacrifice was made to achieve the success you are currently experiencing? Use that as a lesson to learn how to find and keep your balance going forward as you continue to expand and grow.

Sevens

Sevens represent an internal challenge and going deep within. This “dark night of the soul” card and its energy is asking you to have inner faith and trust and to allow space for introspection so that your innate wisdom can be heard. Refinement of your needs can only come from inner reflection, so be protective of your space and energy. Get down to fundamentals. Be silent and do the inner work required to make the best decisions at this time.

The downside of the Seven card can represent a melancholy, coldness, even aloofness to your surroundings. You may be passive-aggressive, confused, nervous, or guarded. You may let your inner demons and insecurities go wild.

Seven of Earth

The Seven of Earth represents the dark night of the soul—an internal challenge that requires your attention. Pull your energy back into your own well-being and practice self-awareness as the key to self-preservation and long-term health and wellness. This card represents security and issues, but not exclusively a money issue. Redefine “failure and success” outside of societal confines by identifying your physical, financial, professional, and family needs. Your solid vision of your needs in these areas illuminate the runway the Universe will use to land your desires in the most useful form.

Seven of Water

This card says you are in emotionally turbulent waters, unable to manage your own well-being, or see what it is you need. This card indicates you may not be getting your needs met in a relationship, so take the time for introspection and go inward and check in with your higher self. Your inner world is unstable, so it is time to face that you are not emotionally satisfied. The help of a therapist may be in order to guide you back to balance. This is not about what someone did to you, it's about how you are managing what someone did to you. Self-forgiveness is a crucial lesson with this card to move forward.

Seven of Air

The Seven of Air represents dysfunctional rescuing; you have got to set boundaries. Are you carrying a burden that is not yours, to begin with? Time to step away and save yourself. Wipe yourself clean, speak the truth. You may be trying to help, but it is dysfunctional and disrespectful to others and yourself to enable in reality. It passively-aggressively implies the other is incapable. It's time to release this pattern from your current life. Watch for an over-active self-critic.

Seven of Fire

The Seven of Fire represents a test of one's faith in oneself. You are working hard again, but this time on an inner level. You are stoic and resilient as you push to exceed personal boundaries no matter what, even though on the outside, it may not seem as if you are working hard at all. Let this Fire card fuel your energy to continue pushing away any self-doubts that have previously hindered your path. The re-evaluation phase fuels the rest of your journey, don't dismiss its value.

Eights

Eights represent connection and in the flow of positivity. You are coming “up for air” and feel power, freedom, success, and a sense of self-reliance and personal authority. Leadership and executive ability are also represented by the number Eight.

The downside of the Eight is you may be feeling impatient and trapped. Your love of power may create a hardness to and intolerance of others. You may be experiencing worry and poor judgment resulting in scheming and misspent energy.

Eight of Earth

The Eight of Earth asks you to come up for air and deeply inhale and exhale all of the abundant earthly energy around you. Everything is possible! This card represents a solid reputation, a master of a particular skill, and both financial and material success. Whatever you’ve been working on or longing for is yours for the asking and deeply supported at this time. Go for it!

Eight of Water

The eight of Water simply says: Walk away. Move forward one step at a time and release that which has left you unfilled and emotionally drained. You may need to see a therapist or at least seek emotionally safe places where you can retreat and find solace. It’s time to rebuild from within and recover from the energy drain.

Eight of Air

The Eight of Air brings the message, “it’s time to let go.” You are mentally exhausted, and it seems you have been led astray. Get out of your head and feel your way out—leave behind your overthinking. Meditate in order to leave behind your thoughts. Stop thinking in circles and seek counsel, support, and guidance.

Nine of Fire

The Nine of Fire brings the message to take care of yourself as you cross the finish line. You need the energy to fuel your determination, for it's been a long haul. Now is the time to double down on your commitment. Details may not be clear yet but stay the course. Take care of your work and be a little guarded at this time. You are almost there. It would be a shame to lose it now in the final moments. The

Tens

Tens represent completion and fulfillment. You have been connected and supported and have reached the end of a cycle/project/lesson or moment on your soul journey.

The downside of the Ten is there maybe a stuckness or blockage on your path. Feelings of overwhelm, exhaustion, and isolation can make you collapse in on yourself.

Ten of Earth

The Ten of Earth represents completion, fulfillment, and connectedness. This card is a soulmate, marriage, and family card. You will feel deep satisfaction from knowing you have the support and skill necessary to see things through to their intended destination. Family growth, health, and well-being are highlighted with this card's energy.

Ten of Water

Ten of Water is a soulmate connection card. This may take the form of marriage or long-term partnership as a family of choice, lovers, or business partners. This is the connection that comes from shared lifetimes together, brings the energy of unity, completeness, deep satisfaction, contentment, joy, sweet serenity, and love. This is a powerful card that cannot be denied. There is peaceful contentment to this love.

Ten of Air

The Ten of Air represents mental exhaustion and self-torment, which has left you unable to rest or feel secure. Whatever lesson you are currently experiencing, this is your call to closure. It is time to move on and release. Surrender. Let it go for the sake of your survival.

Ten of Fire

The Ten of Fire represents completion, and this can be in several forms. Perhaps there is a finality to a project or work-related issue. There may also be someone or something draining your energy and soul that you need to walk away from. That time is now. There will be fulfillment with closure. This phase of your journey is complete.
